Huberman Pulls Two Schools Off of Actions List
That Goes Before Chicago Board of Education Tomorrow

Chicago Public Schools Chief Executive Officer Ron Huberman announced today that he is removing William H. Prescott Elementary School, 1632 W. Wrightwood, from the school actions list that is to be submitted to the Chicago Board of Education tomorrow, Huberman also said he is also suspending a proposal regarding the consolidation of Guglielmo Marconi Elementary School, 230 N Kolmar.

Huberman said CPS officials have received substantial input from the Prescott School community regarding plans to increase the school's enrollment for the next school year. Prescott was proposed for closing because of under-enrollment. The school has less than 200 students and a design capacity to accommodate 600.

"The school community at Prescott has put forth a variety of plans on how they would improve enrollment, and we are going to give them the opportunity to do that," Huberman said. The success of those efforts will be reviewed this fall, he said.

Marconi was proposed to be consolidated with George W. Tilton School, also because of under-enrollment. Marconi currently has an enrollment of 236 students with a design capacity of almost 800.

Huberman said he is suspending, for now, any proposed action involving Marconi while CPS officials work with the school community on alternative options.

Chicago Public Schools serves approximately 408,000 students in more than 670 schools. It is the third-largest school district in the nation.
